The Sanibel Captiva Trust Company welcomed clients, shareholders and members of the community to its new suite of offices completed by Architecture Joyce Owens LLC on 2460 Palm Ridge Road, Sanibel.

The trust company worked with Joyce Owens, an architect who designs commercial and residential buildings, to create an office in keeping with Sanibel/Captiva and the firm's asset management business.

"Our new office will provide appropriate privacy and comfort for our clients as well as staff," said Sanibel Captiva Trust CEO Al Hanser. "It is tasteful and captures the essence of Sanibel and Captiva's history, yet has state-of-the-art technology."

The new facility has bamboo floors, the wide panes of glass allowing natural sunlight, retro-style furniture and black and white photographs by legendary island photographer Charles McCullough.

"The trust company wanted something simple and contemporary with an island feel," said Ms. Owens. "We call it Tropical Modern. It is very open and the materials were selected to feel like the colors and textures of the island."
